One of the Country's Top Attorney's and Mother of Two Presents the Quintessential Guide to Legal Planning for Parents

Anyone who is a parent spends countless hours planning—birthday parties, play dates, carpools, daycare, afterschool activities—but rarely plans for an accident or their own mortality. How can they begin to protect their children when they don't want to acknowledge an unforeseen circumstance?

Although it may seem more than a bit scary, it makes sense for parents to make legal plans for the most extreme emergencies. One of the top lawyers in the country, and a mom to two children, Alexis Martin Neely takes parents on a journey to help them plan for their children's future with Wear Clean Underwear: A Fast, Fun, Friendly—and Essential—Guide to Legal Planning For Busy Parents. Neely addresses the question “What would happen if...” What if a single parent dies when a child is still a minor? What if both parents die within a few moments or years of each other, leaving minor children behind? What happens to all the money left behind? How can parents make the best decisions without wondering what to do?

Wear Clean Underwear will help every parent understand all the legal complexities of what would happen to their assets, children, spouse, or loved ones, if something were to happen. Using unique stories to illustrate real-life examples of various circumstances, Neely shows parents what would happen now based on their current choices and gives them context for making crucial decisions that should not be left unplanned.

In simple, easy to understand terms, the book is broken into three sections each with a layman's explanation of the legal issues involved in making sure one's children and assets are cared for including re-marriage and personal property tax. From issues of guardianship and avoiding unnecessary estate taxes to leaving behind letters and videos, each story ends with additional websites and resources for family planning.

Wear Clean Underwear ensures that every parent will be able to quickly and easily understand what they must do to ensure their kids will be well taken care of— no matter what.
